Essay

I don ' t think censorship is right for our public libraries . In my opinion , it depends on what they are saying or what they are showing . Also , it depends on what what the ages the kids are or adults . People are different in many ways . It also depends on the way they take it in their sign if action . If they move books , music , movies , and magazines off the shelves because their offensive that wouldn ' t be a very good idea because how would other people get ah old of it and want to read it in life , if they get taken off the shelves ? Some people enjoy actually reading that stuff and nothing else . I just don ' t think that people would be to happy . Also , they ' re different cultures in these countries that read stuff like that . People would like to learn about different things . If people took the books and other things like that off the shelves , there would be hardly anything to read . Children s and up to adult books has all different kinds of things . The books and things like that you can read can have more things in it besides offensive things , sometimes they can have more information in those books than others . In my conclusion , censorship is not good in our public libraries because it taking basic things out of the libraries and taking half of the reading from people .
